A New Game In Town

Feb 2010

Comin' straight out of Hong Kong, S-Thunder has some "toys" that are sure to soothe the savage Milsim beast....if they hold up to their hype.

S-Thunder is the not so new kid in town, looking for a slice of the Milsim pie. Apparently, they've been a manufacturer for some pretty high-end Airsoft companies and are offering everything from markers to mines. You can check out videos of their kit here:

The rest below is directly from their site for a little more background on the company.

- To elevate/enhance/evolve the performance & quality of war game equipment and hardware.
- To design, engineer and evolve tactical war game supplies to a new level to create new industry standards in performance, quality & durability.
- To offer professional war gamers, police and military training units an evolutionary line of replica military hardware where ease of use, performance & durability meet or exceed currently industry performance levels.

S-Thunder was formed by a group of industrial designers, engineers, manufacturers and marketers who are also war game hobbyists. During their years as players, they also became skilled in modifying and enhancing the performance and accuracy of war games equipment and accessories including paintball markers, airsoft and automatic electric guns.

S-Thunder started as an Original Equipment Manufacturer (OEM) for high end airsoft guns. After extensive experience in producing airsoft guns for well known brands and modifying paintball markers for their own use, S-Thunder's engineering team realized that most war game equipment utilizes engineering and designs that were considered evolutionary years ago, but are no longer state of the art by today's engineering standards and innovations.

With this knowledge, S-Thunder has developed all new designs, engineering and manufacturing methods that are now patent pending and will be applied to a new line of war game equipment. All S-Thunder products are engineered to outperform and outlast products currently available in the market.

The S-Thunder product line includes Paintball Markers, Gas Landmines, Gas Grenades, CO₂ Cylinders and Accessories, and other Parts and Accessories. S-Thunder's products are best suited for professional war gamers and military / tactical / training, riot control and entertainment production.

S-Thunder is continuously developing new products to help enhance the war gamers' experience to a new untouched level of satisfaction.
